

*CALL OUT Publication contribution - Disability & Accessibility in grassroots organizations

EYFA has been working on a year-long project visibilizing the structural and societal challenges that young and/or marginalized people with disabilities face within and outside of movements. We hope to encourage activist groups and individuals to question their understanding of accessibility and inclusion with the aim of building and strengthening solidarity practices and allyship. So far, we have interviewed disability justice groups and those with lived experience of invisible and visible disabilities to gather various perspectives that will be compiled and published.

We are currently reaching out to include more experiences and perspectives for the publication. Contributions can be in form of a text, comic, drawing or any other form of graphic. It could also be work you have already done in the past!

We are keen on contributions on the following topics:

- Ableism and discrimination within social and environmental movements
- What inclusion means for you
- Your experience of living with disability/illness
- Accessibility as a practice - beyond structural considerations like ramps
- Intersectional approaches to disability justice
- Responsible allyship and best solidarity practices

Who is invited to submit?

Anyone with lived experiences of visible or invisible disabilities, chronic illness, neurodiversities.

What about the Publication?

The idea is to create a guide on how we can better organize ourselves / events / networks and daily life in a way that is more inclusive and accessible to all. The final work will be distributed both online and in hard copy among grassroots groups/projects & basically any individual interested in creating spaces that are safer and accessible!
